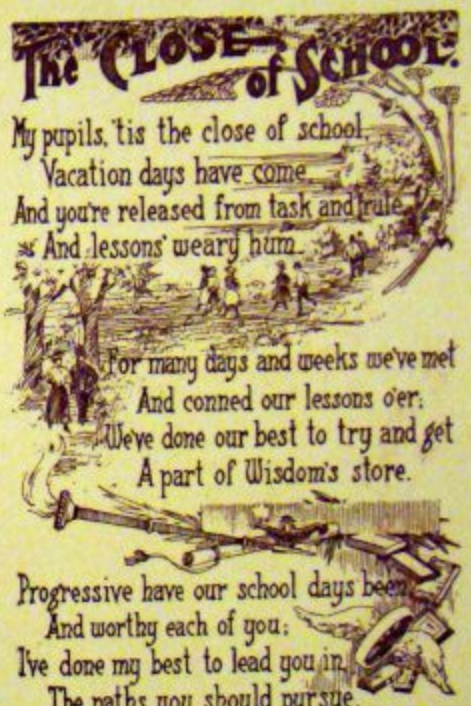
The Close of School.



My pupils, 'tis the close of school.
Vacation days have come.
And you're released from task and rule
And lessons' weary hum.

For many days and weeks we've met
And conned our lessons o'er;
We've done our best to try and get
A part of Wisdom's store.

Progressive have our school days been
And worthy each of you;
I've done my best to lead you in
The paths you should pursue.

As time flits by I'll think of you,
Observe you in Life's race,
Each feature still will come in view
Each well remembered face.

But now the time has come about
The closing words to say;
The shadows fall and lengthen out
And mark declining day.

Until another term shall call
You here,—Good Bye!—till then;
May God be with you each and all
Until we meet again.
